

Jump$tar<sup>t</sup> National Educator Conference

2026 Teacher Scholarship Criteria

The Jump$tar National Educator Conference advances financial literacy among students by bringing PreK-12 teachers from across the country to a national professional development event where they can discover classroom resources, trending information, new ideas, a network of fellow educators, and the many organizations and individuals who believe in what they do. The objective of the Jump$tar NEC Teacher Scholarship Program is to ensure that deserving teachers have the opportunity to attend, regardless of their own school's ability to pay.

Eligibility

Scholarship applicants must be licensed PreK-12 classroom teachers:

- Are based in the United States or its territories or in a school serving U.S. citizens (such as on a military base).
- Who are currently employed by a PreK-12 public, private, or charter school, school district, or school system -or- with confirmed employment at a PreK-12 public, private, or charter school for the 2026-27 school year.
- Who have at least one full school year of teaching experience behind them, as well as plans to teach for at least one full school year following the event.

Ineligibility

Prior Jump$tar National Educator Conference attendees who have egregiously and intentionally disregarded policies, caused damages onsite at the events, or have conducted themselves in an unprofessional manner may not be eligible to participate again.

Selection Criteria for First-Time Attendees

First-time attendees are teachers who have never attended the Jump$tar National Educator Conference in the past -or- who have not attended in the past five years. Jump$tar and its scholarship providers seek teachers from all parts of the country who, through their application, can demonstrate:

- A passion for the benefits of financial literacy for their students and others.
- A thoughtful plan to utilize the information, ideas, and resources obtained at the conference.
- A commitment to effectiveness in classroom-based financial education, beginning in their own.

Selection Criteria for Return Attendees

Teachers who have attended the Jump$tar<sup>t</sup> NEC multiple times become part of a nationwide community of dedicated financial educators. Jump$tar<sup>t</sup> and its scholarship providers seek teachers who, through their application, can demonstrate:

- A commitment to the broader financial literacy effort through participation in activities and initiatives beyond their own classrooms.
- Support for fellow educators, especially those new to the Jump$tar<sup>t</sup> NEC and/or new to financial education in the classroom.
- A commitment to effectiveness in classroom-based financial education, as it continues to evolve.

Selection Priorities

Jump$tar<sup>t</sup> strives for:

- A participation ratio of 30% returning attendees and 60% first-timers, leaving 10% as discretionary, either way. First-time attendees are teachers who have never attended the Jump$tar<sup>t</sup> National Educator Conference in the past -or- who have not attended in the past five years.
- A participation ratio of 70% high school teachers, 10% middle grade teachers, and 10% elementary teachers, leaving 10% as discretionary across the categories.
- Representation across all states and territories but may be selected more heavily from some geographic areas and/or demographic categories based on preferences specified by our scholarship donors.
